#4 – Business Support & Advice

There is a myriad of so called business support and advice available to businesses from both the private and public sectors much of it very good but busy business people, especially those of you running small businesses do not have the time or inclination to sift through this mountain of information and many business people tell us that the so called simplification process has made little if any improvement.

We want to keep our service simple, relevant and easy for you to use.

Our contacts with the public, private and third sectors enable us to keep up with the wealth of support available to businesses so we can tell you the relevant and best parts and put you in touch with the right people.

In the main we believe we can offer you a first port of call service. By working with key local partners in all sectors including the University and Business Link we will direct relevant and up to date business support and advice to you, saving you time and frustration and enabling you to do what you do best in running your business. This will eventually be both an on-line and a face to face service to suit your specific needs.

Although this service is available to all business, irrespective of size and sector, it is specifically geared to small and micro businesses.

Two specific areas where we believe we can offer a unique service is with initial planning issues and dealings with your local authority on most issues. We are also developing a unique support service to any business in the creative sector and shortly will be producing detailed support information for this sector based on lessons learnt from our contacts with local creative businesses and best practice from elsewhere. This will be available both on line and in paper form.
